

EVERYTHING'S GONNA BE ALRIGHT

Original title: Cosa sarà

Directed by: Francesco Bruni

Cast: Kim Rossi Stuart, Lorenza Indovina, Barbara Ronchi, Giuseppe Pambieri, Raffaella Lebboroni, Nicola Nocella, Fotini Peluso, Tancredi Galli, Elettra Mallaby, Stefano Rossi Giordani, Ninni Bruschetta

Screenplay: Francesco Bruni

Cinematography: Carlo Rinaldi

Editing: Alessandro Heffler

Set design: Ilaria Sadun

Costume design: Maria Cristina La Parola

Music: Stefano Ratchev, Mattia Carratello

Producer: Carlo Degli Esposti, Nicola Serra

Production: Palomar, Vision Distribution, supported by MiBACT

World sales: Vision Distribution

Country: Italy

Year: 2020

Film run: 101'

Bruno Salvati's life is in on hold. His films have never been successful and his producer struggles to finance is next project. His wife Anna, whom he recently separated from, already seems to have found another partner. And Bruno also feels an imperfect father for his children Adele and Tito. One day Bruno discovers he has a form of leukemia. He immediately relies on a competent and tenacious hematologist, who guides him on a very tough path to survival. The first goal is to find a compatible stem cell donor: after a few failed attempts, Bruno begins to be seriously afraid. His father Umberto is therefore forced to reveal a secret from his past which could give a new hope to the man. Bruno and his family embark on an unexpected journey of rebirth, with the hidden awareness that for them "Everything's gonna be alright".